Italpollina Opening of Manufacturing Plant Marks the Start of a New Era

With the commissioning of the new North American production facility, Italpollina has set a new milestone in implementing its international growth strategy. After about 18 months of construction, one of the world's largest biostimulant production facilities for use in agriculture is officially opened and on its way to the full production of the company's hallmark 100% vegetal-based products. The new state-of-the-art plant, which also serves as the Italpollina's North American headquarters, will triple the company's ability to produce their biostimulants, illustrating the company's commitment to meeting the demands of the North American market. An official grand opening was held in October 2018. - The Herald Bulletin
