Line of Fire Safety Message

Line of fire hazards occur when a worker is in the danger zone if a release of energy would cause the worker to be hit, struck, pinched, impaled, crushed, caught between objects. Injuries from line of fire accidents range from minor, such as a pinched finger, all the way to a fatality.

Consider if your work or task will involve the release of energy in a manner that might cause a worker to have to position their body in a fashion that could cause injury if the energy was suddenly released.
